Share the gifts God gave you

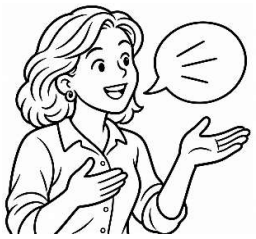

A talent is something you are good at or something that you can learn to do well. God has given everyone different talents, different gifts. He wants us to discover our gifts; practice using them and share them to help others. Some gifts are obvious, like when someone is a talented at a sport, at singing, music or speaking in public. Some are not so obvious, like noticing when someone is lonely and helping them feel included, or being a good friend, listening or helping someone. The important thing is not how many talents we have, but what we do with them. God has given you talents because He wants you to use them to help others and share His love with the world.

What gifts or talents do you think that you have?

Ask your parents what talents or gifts they see in you. What did they say?
